Gregg's Good News

I expect you've had one of those days, weeks, seasons of life also. The list of important tasks and activities gets ever longer while the number of hours and units of personal energy get smaller.

Typically, I go to Searcy, Arkansas for a few days in June to teach people planning to be vocational missionaries in East Asia. This year, the group does not have funds to fly me in and it was unclear if the training was going to occur. But just days ago, I learned the event is on and the hope is I can teach several sessions on video. Aargh! Which being translated is, "This is the extra task that puts me well over the top."

At times like this, I'm learning there are several things we can do.

1. Look at the giant task and break it down into more manageable units. For example: Find my misplaced notes, ask a capable video person to help, update the notes, etc.
2. It's a difficult one for me. But some things just have to fall off the table. It's not always easy to choose what those are. Remaining responsible in my primary tasks does stay on; appointments with non or new Christians are kept; events with people who are already Christian may flex. Trust in God and time alone with God is essential.
3. Avoid the perfectionism approach. "Anything worth doing is worth doing well" isn't always true. Some check list items just need to get done. What is easy?
4. A verse I found recently. I Cor. 16:13-14 "Be on your guard; stand firm in the faith; be men of courage; be strong. Do everything in love." That last sentence reminds me what must be the prime mover behind all the tasks. And when that is the prime mover, even the disliked tasks become less stressful.
5. As I was driving here this morning, I saw a young man carrying a 12 pack of Bud Light. So early in the day. I hope he wasn't going off to get drunk. The first half of the I Cor. verses remind us to watch out for sin (escape through chemicals, anger towards family) during high pressure seasons.

Thoughts, Questions, Notes

Kim Lopez is looking for volunteers to help with our VBS Super Saturday on July 14th. She needs people to help on that day and people to help prepare beforehand. Let her know if you can help!

Minister Search Committee Update

We have already received expressions of interest in the position.

Pray for the committee to discern God's will as we pick a new Minister.

Greetings, Josh from UCC here. We just had an encouraging trip to Hill Street Church of Christ, one of our long time supporting congregations. Ryan was the preacher, Tony lead his first communion, Jeremy lead songs, Thomas taught Bible Class, Emily created our power point, Lindsay taught Kids Time, and Natalie promoted the event on social media. Ryan gave an excellent message about the Great Commission and how God is using UCC to send his message to all nations. He shared the stories of Tony and Lucas becoming Christians, and the way people from many nations regularly join us for worship, Bible study and service. His message was powerful not because of complex theological ideas or theatrical performance, but because he described the power of Jesus Christ to save lives (1 Corinthians 1:17). One of the members at Hill Street said, 'wow, it sounds like God is really working at your Church.' Praise God that He is able to use us to fulfill His Great Commission.

We have at least 9 students headed to Catalyst Young Adults retreat this weekend (ages 18-29)—7 Americans and 2 International students. Pray that they will grow deeper in the love of God this weekend and that bonds of fellowship would be formed between young people all across the state.
