Gregg's Good News

When I look out the front window of our house, in the direction of the Northwest, I see the hills. On one occasion, I remember staring at them covered with snow. Presently, the groves of trees frame the grassy area. Later in the year, that grass will stand starkly brown in contrast to the leaves and evergreens. Many of us have hiked that area, taking off from the Chip Ross parking area.

I just stood up to try and see those hills from my office windows. But leafed out trees and the Chevron overhang are obstructing the view. It doesn't matter, I know the hills are still there.

Long ago, I was reflecting on Psalm 121 and set my gaze on those hills. Since that time, looking up to that scene has been a reminder of the following truth.

"I lift up my eyes to the hills where does my help come from? My help comes from the LORD, the Maker of heaven and earth."

The Psalm continues by declaring that God definitely is awake 24/7 to keep watch over your life, no matter where you are coming or going. As long as those hills are in place, even on the days that I can't see them, I am reminded that Almighty God watches over me and my life.

I like having reminders in place in my life that point me to God and call me to trust in Him. What sights or sounds prompt you to remember God?

I have long appreciated the fact that many people pray for me consistently. This evening, time will be set aside for us to pray for all church leaders.
