The Rest of Sleep

I'm writing this article Wednesday afternoon. Last night, two of my children didn't go to sleep until after midnight. Three of them, including the two that got to bed late, were constantly up in some way through the night, which ended up keeping Daddy awake until sometime between 3am-4am. I'm tired. Amy was up feeding our 2-week-old most of the night as well. She's tired. As a former elder of mine said, "That's why God made parents young."

At least we know why we're tired, and I'm ok with that. They won't always need me or Amy in the night, so we try to treasure even these...yaaaawn...tiresome moments.

The National Sleep Foundation reports that 2/5 of Americans report poor sleep quality every night, and half of Americans report poor sleep quality at least once a week. Even among those who report getting enough sleep (a recommended 7 hours a night for adults), the trends of a poor quality of sleep persist. I'm sure we've all heard someone say something like, "I slept forever last night but can't stay awake today!"

I'm not a sleep expert, but there's obvious difference between simply sleeping and sleeping well. I don't always know the why behind the difference, but I do know that nights I go to bed and wake up thinking about an event coming up, the upcoming sermon, or anything that stresses me, while I tend to sleep for a while, it's a poor sleep quality. And there's a lot to think about in life. I've come to realize that there is a huge difference between simply sleeping and truly resting.

Have you ever considered this difference in your life? Do you fill your mind with Facebook posts, new reports or the stresses of the day right before bed? Or do we try to take a moment to remind ourselves of the grace of God, of the security we have in Him, and how He's bigger than what today held or tomorrow holds? Do we even consider rest a discipline we can influence, or are we always at the mercy of however the night goes? I wonder how many people could benefit from truly being able to put their minds and hearts at rest before bed, like Christians could every night, so that they could finally truly rest at night. Or in the day for that matter. Grace to you.

Hey Everyone,

We had another great Walk 4 Water event, and I would like to extend a special thanks to everyone who joined us! For those who missed it, we hope you can make it next year. It's a fun and beautiful walk next to the Willamette River, it's a great outreach to non-believers, and we get to drill a well in Haiti. If you couldn't make it to the walk but you would still like to donate online, you can do so here:

<https://www.hhi.org/walk4water/corvallis-or-2019>.

Or, make checks payable to Healing Hands International and send them to:
