Thomas' Takeaways

Thankful For...The Church

Welcome to November, and welcome to an extra hour of sleep. Hopefully you got to enjoy it – I'll be optimistic about Amy's and my own chances come this weekend...

First and foremost, thank you to everyone who was not only present last week for assembly and attended the potluck (always a good time!), but extra and sincere thanks on behalf of our family for the baby shower for little Melissa last week. We're still sorting through everything we've been Graced with (see what I did there? (c), and are blown away by your generosity and desire to bless us as you have and constantly do.

I say this without any hint of condescension, and perhaps more in incredulity than anything: I don't know how people can live without God & His Church. I don't say this only because of my profession, but because God has at times been the only thing to see us through certain situations. And in times, our church family, whether it was in Texas, South Dakota, or Oregon, has always been there to pray for us and help us in a myriad of ways. From someone offering to help me change my brakes, or I wake up to an Elder snow-blowing my driveway, or offers to watch our kids so Amy & I can have a date, even just always having someone to call, talk to, and pray with, among many other examples, the church, meaning the people with whom I share the common love & faith in Christ, have become such a part of our lives, we couldn't and wouldn't want to live in isolation. We've come to depend on the church, not just for help, but for community, friendship, and just plain and simple life, that to have a church family has indeed become part of how our lives are.

No church is perfect, but I've seen people made perfect in Christ and how that matters in the everyday grind of life. I'm thankful for God creating this community and emboldening His people to live as they ought. In short, I'm thankful for the Church, to not only be a part of it as a sinner saved by grace, but to be a part of a place where God is real. If our community can be this good now, just imagine what God has in store. Grace to you.

November 16th, 9am: Worship Workshop

This Workshop is for everyone who leads songs, prayers, the Lord's Table or serves on the Lord's Table. Come see how you can better tie vour part into Sunday Morning Worship!

1655 NW Monroe Ave. Corvallis. OR 97330

Fall Term always seems so hectic. We have such a short time to tell people about the UCC and invite them to Tuesday Night Devotional. Such a short time to inform students about who we are and encourage them to make a choice that will affect the rest of their lives. College is a time where young adults can make their own choices about everything - including faith - and they can finally decide for themselves if they are going to go to church, if they are going to seek Christian community.

Why do we have such a short window to reach these students, you might ask? Because habits are formed in 21 days. 3 weeks. After being at college for 3 weeks, students have established a routine, and they have their core group of friends. They become less willing to try new things, to go to different clubs/organizations, to disrupt their routine.

Thank you, Circle, for everything you do in this crazy busy fall season! Thank you for all the meals you cook, for the Welcome Bags you prepare, for saving all the Beaver Gear during the Clothing Give Away, for talking to students, for helping with UCC events. All of these activities on their own may seem unimportant, but you ARE making a lasting impact on a student's spiritual walk, and that is the most important thing.
