Thomas' Takeaways

Support

$5,800. I'm ecstatic to again report that last week's mission dinner, complete with amazing desserts, giant pinatas, and many people being reminded of how poor their Spanish is, raised $5,800 for the UCC's mission trip to Mountain States Children's Home, their goal being $5,500. As one who happens to believe in the concept of supporting people to have experiences that will impact and shape their walk with Christ, I thank you deeply for your generosity and support for this cause.

While I'm sure there's a pithy saying somewhere that could say it better, what people truly believe in is often revealed when it comes to their bank accounts. This is true in politics, in charities, in education, and yes in churches. There's something different about simply saying you believe in a mission or a person versus giving your hard-earned money. Even in my personal experience of raising support, people will believe in your vision 99%, but that last 1% is enough to keep them from donating. I say all that to say that obviously the mission of the UCC, and the mission to give our young people worthwhile experiences is indeed one we believe in, and that's a wonderful thing.

There is one thing, however, that I've found is even harder for people to give than their money. Indeed, many people will throw gobs of money at people and organizations and never part with this much more precious commodity, one that reveals to an even deeper degree what your priorities and what you believe in. And rightly so, because unlike money, this can never be replaced, made up, or saved, which is why it's so precious.

What does your time reveal about what your priorities in life are? What would your schedule reveal about what you believe in? And would you consider investing this much more valuable currency into the people you so generously support with your money? Would you consider investing this in each other? Money is a wonderful and valuable thing, but it cannot buy what time can: fellowship, mentorship, discipleship, and dare I say love. And, what's more, unlike money, we already have as much of it as we're willing to give. Grace to you.

Thanks for Mission Dinner: Proceeds will go to send the college students (and young adults) on a support mission to Mountain States Children's Home. Special thanks to our leadership teams: Darla and Maria (kitchen and logistics), Jann, Lindsay and Shelby (recruiting and entertainment) and Chris and Emily (decoration and set up). Thank you Ryan Bracht for covering my public speaking. Thank you team for countless hours of work!

Update on my health: On Friday 2/28 at 2am I went to the Newberg ER with blocked throat and nasal passages. I could not eat or drink anything and had difficulty breathing. I took an ambulance to Portland. It was an extreme case of mono that required heavy steroids. I'm on the mend. I can now eat and sleep. I hope to return soon.

Mission dinner wrap up: We raised at least $5,800, exceeding our goal of $5,500. All glory to God and thank you for being part of His work! If you still wish to donate, it will be used for unforeseen expenses on the trip, and we may donate some excess funds to the home. You can leave a check to UCC in my (Josh's) box, or donate online: osucc.com->give->missions. Thank you everyone!
